Enzyme Structure

enzymes enzyme structure - california state university ... - enzyme structure • most enzymes are proteins • enzymes may require a non-peptide component as a co-factor. the peptide component is called the apoenzyme, the cofactor is called as the coenzyme and the combined functional unit is the holoenzyme. enzyme structure and function - bio-net - interactions between molecules affect their structure and function. structure and function structure always determines function. molecular interactions lead to organism phenotypes. ... an enzyme tells you about its substrate in the first part of its name, and ends in -ase. (ex. lipase) proteins and enzymes - utsouthwestern - • basics of protein structure and composition • the life of a protein • enzymes - theory of enzyme function - not all enzymes are proteins / not all proteins are enzymes - enzyme regulation • setting up an enzyme assay - buffer, cofactors, substrate, enzyme enzymes chapter 10 enzymes - angelo state university - enzyme cofactors 17 enzyme cofactors •conjugated proteins function only in the presence of specific nonprotein molecules or metal ions called prosthetic groups. -if the nonprotein component is tightly bound, and forms an integral part of the enzyme structure, it is a true prosthetic group. -if the nonprotein component is weakly bound, introduction to enzymes - worthington biochemical - absolute specificity - the enzyme will catalyze only one reaction. 2. group specificity - the enzyme will act only on molecules that have specific functional groups, such as amino, phosphate and methyl groups. 3. linkage specificity - the enzyme will act on a particular type of chemical bond regardless of the rest of the molecular structure. 4. structural biochemistry/enzyme - resourcesylor - enzyme is disrupted or interrupted in some fashion. inhibitors can be molecules that have a similar shape, structure, or charge to the substrate in question so that the active site of an enzyme will "mistake" the inhibitor for the substrate. this affects the affinity of the enzyme for the substrate, as well as the rate of the overall reaction ... lecture 2: enzymes - the university of edinburgh - enzymes 3d structure • enzymes are proteins and their activities depends on the 3d structure of the amino acids that compose them (note: also some rnas have catalytic activity but they won't be covered in this course) images from: david l. nelson, lehninger principles of biochemistry, iv edition, w. h. freeman ed.
